The Department of Psychology and Education at New Mexico Tech (NMT) seeks a candidate for the position of Instructional Designer on the new 5 year Title V grant from the Department of Education, Advancing Teaching and Training of Hispanic Educators in STEM in New Mexico (AT-THE-STEM-NM). The grant aims to increase the number of STEM teachers in our teacher training (ALP) and Master of Science for Teachers (MST) programs. The grant specifically seeks to increase the number of Hispanic students choosing to go into teaching.

The successful candidate must have at least a Master's degree in Instructional Design, Educational Technology or a related field. This person should have experience working in higher education and academic learning environments, as well as with learning management systems and helping to develop distance learning courses. Having experience providing pedagogical and instructional design support to teachers is highly desired. Being bilingual is also desired. The position is open immediately and will last for the five year period of this grant.

The Instructional Designer will be responsible for course design and implementation of courses for our Education programs. The Instructional Designer will work directly with STEM faculty in the development and creation of new courses for our MST program. In addition, the Instructional Designer will work with the MST Coordinator and the Title V Project Managers to help redesign MST distance courses to present them using innovative teaching methods.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, resume and the names and contact information of three references to Rosa Jaramillo at nmtjobapps@npe.nmt.edu and Mark.Samuels@nmt.edu. Questions can be directed to the Project Director of the grant Dr. Mark Samuels. College transcripts will be required if selected to interview. The selection process will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

NMT is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Benefits include a health plan (health, vision, dental) and a retirement plan. New Mexico Tech is located in Socorro, in the scenic Rio Grande River Valley of central New Mexico, 75 miles south of Albuquerque and 139 miles south of Santa Fe. Nearby mountains and desert canyons provide opportunities for excellent hiking, climbing, and mountain biking. The Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge, located just south of Socorro along a major north-south flyway, offers some of the best birding in the USA.
